Fund Manager Commentary

European equity markets climbed for the fourth consecutive month alongside global markets, in a period of relative geopolitical quietness. Deteriorating macroeconomic data indicators had signalled weakness in previous months which markets had reacted to, most notably at the close of 2018. Perhaps surprisingly, first quarter Eurozone GDP figures were released showing better than expected growth and markets reacted positively with business cyclicals performing strongest. Spain also held a general election that resulted in a hung parliament, as the Spanish Socialist Workers Party won the election 11 seats short of a majority. Information Technology was the leading sector followed by Industrials and Financials, which are significant overweight's for the fund. Energy investments fell over April aiding performance as the fund holds no exposure to these companies and Healthcare stocks closed the month as the biggest loser, whilst the fund's investments generated gains. Draegerwerk was a strong performer as management released a positive outlook for the year. Saint Gobain benefitted from the macroeconomic relief combined with news of a potential partial sale of a business division. Electrical supplies firm Rexel also experienced strong gains from surpassing expectations with sales figures improving, despite negative impacts from copper price moves.
