Fund Manager Commentary

April was another positive month for global equities, returning 3.5% in GBP terms, while the fund outperformed and returned 5.9%. Heading into the earnings season, the market anticipated a slowdown of growth to materialise in results. However, earnings were better than feared with top-line growth still present in Europe and the US. Bottom line results also held up, particularly in Japan where over half of companies reporting earnings ahead of expectations. The fund outperformance was driven by stock selection, most notably in Japan and the US. In terms of individual holdings, top contributors included NXP Semiconductors (+19%) and IPG Photonics (+16%) following better-than-anticipated first quarter results. Nintendo (+19%) also rallied strongly after the company announced regulatory approval to distribute its Switch console in China (the largest digital media market in the world) for the first time, a reflection of the company's responsible approach to family orientated gaming. Healthcare stocks were the major detractors during the month, with large Medtech and Pharma stocks off on the prospect of a 'Medicare for all' push by the Democrats in the US. Investment activity in April included the trimming of existing allocations to IPG Photonics, Sporton International and Cisco Systems following a sustained period of strong, respective performance.
