Europe is home to many of the world's leading sustainable companies – offering investors access to powerful long-term growth trends, including renewable energy, the circular economy and the development of the green grid. European companies are also pioneering the technologies and equipment needed to decarbonise the economy, providing further sustainable investment opportunities.

The EdenTree European Equity

Fund Seeks to harness these trends.

We believe it invests in sustainable companies that are undervalued and offer attractive earnings and cash-flow growth. The fund, which launched in 1999, has been managed by Chris Hiorns since 2007.

Europe's sustainable landscape: the case for strategic investment

With its comprehensive regulations, cultural commitment and its emphasis on corporate responsibility, Europe is at the forefront of sustainable investing. Regulations such as the European Green Deal, which aims to make Europe the first climate-neutral continent by 2050, demonstrate its commitment to environmental sustainability and its leadership in setting ambitious climate goals.

Europe's markets are home to world-leading companies in various sectors, with strong dividends and robust corporate governance. Political developments and economic uncertainties can create opportunities for value investors to purchase high-quality companies at attractive prices. This combination of diverse market opportunities, undervalued stocks and high dividends make Europe an attractive destination for value investors seeking to uncover overlooked opportunities and achieve long-term growth.

Value and sustainability: our investment process

The investment process of the EdenTree European Equity Fund combines bottom-up stock-picking with a commitment to responsible and sustainable investing. Each potential investment undergoes rigorous fundamental analysis within a value-oriented framework as well as being screened for its ethical practices and its adherence to environmental, social and governance (ESG) criteria.

The fund's emphasis on value means that it takes an inherently contrarian stance, focusing on stocks that are out of favour. The fund seeks to avoid companies that are 'value traps' and also companies trading at excessive valuations, which can arise during bouts of market speculation. The fund achieves this by investing in companies that are trading at attractive valuations yet still maintain strong market positions, enabling them to grow over time.

The fund's holdings fall into three main categories: income accumulators, contrarian plays and value with hidden growth.

- Income accumulators are well-established businesses with relatively stable earnings and strong cash flows that are distributed to shareholders via dividends. The fund looks for companies with a long history of sustainably delivering cash flows back to shareholders. Income accumulators represent roughly 45-50% of the overall portfolio.
- Contrarian plays are companies that are trading at low valuations and are out of favour with the rest of the market. Over the short term, these companies may have depressed cash flows affected by short-term market or structural factors. Over the long term, however, these factors are expected to reverse.
- Value with hidden growth companies are those that haven't always generated high levels of growth but are in mature industries where potential growth opportunities have been overlooked by the wider market.

Balance your portfolio with value-driven diversification

The EdenTree European Equity Fund's focus on value differentiates it from its competitors, which typically have a growth bias. This means that the fund offers diversification benefits for sustainable investors and their clients, who may be over-exposed to growth and looking to create more balanced portfolios. At the same time, the fund seeks to offer strong investment returns aligned with positive environmental and societal change.

The value opportunity

In low interest rate environments, such as the environment seen between 2020-2022, growth companies tend to outperform value companies. However, with more recent high inflation and subsequently higher interest rates, we have seen a market rotation back to value stocks. Through the fund's investment process, we aim to seek out companies that aren't simply undervalued but those we believe to be poised to perform well and grow cash flows over the long term.

The fund's approach rests on the belief that the best way to generate long-term returns is to invest in companies that can grow their cash flows over time – and are trading at attractive valuations.

The outcome is a diversified portfolio of 40-60 responsible and sustainable companies, which trade in aggregate at a significant discount relative to the benchmark and have historically generated strong yields.

The level of income is not fixed and may change in the future.

The EdenTree Team

Chris Hiorns, EdenTree's Head of Multi Asset Strategies and European Equities, has managed the fund since 2007. Chris has over 25 years of experience investing across asset classes. Beginning his career as a fund manager during the dot-com bubble (where US equity valuations of internet-based companies rapidly rose only to fall in the early 2000s), Chris's scepticism of the excessive valuations at this time solidified his stance as a value-oriented, fundamentals-focused investor. Chris is assisted by David Osfield, who joined as co-manager of the fund in September 2016, and Lauren Smith, who recently joined as Associate Fund Manager in July 2024.

The managers are supported by our Responsible Investment Team, who ensure that each investment is suitable for the fund from a responsible and sustainable investment perspective. The longstanding relationship between the managers and the Responsible Investment Team has played a crucial role in the fund's long-term outperformance. Our responsible and sustainable investment process is also overseen by an Independent Advisory Panel that meets three times a year. This panel comprises industry and business experts, appointed for their specialist knowledge.
